Roberts & Doré

purveyors of the finest gifts & silverware for over 100 years

Est. 1908
Roberts & Doré has a long and distinguished pedigree dating back to 1908 when Tom Roberts, a respected and established figure in the City of London, was unable to source silverware of the quality he desired. So with his business partner James Doré, they founded Roberts and Doré Ltd as manufacturing silversmiths and cutlers. Gathering together some of the best craftsmen in the country, Tom took on extensive premises in London’s Hatton Garden and factories in Sheffield and Birmingham. The company soon grew in reputation for having the finest showrooms exhibiting top quality silverware in London. In 1932 the firm opened an additional showroom in Dublin.

The business was an immediate success. Tom’s renowned refusal to compromise on quality and design soon saw his craftsmen supplying the top London stores and his pieces were exported throughout the World, including special commissions for international royalty, and many governments. Their old letter headings show “Contractors to H.M. Government” and they traded extensively with Australia, New Zealand, Canada, South Africa and Spain. The company was also responsible for producing a special trophy for the American Kennedy dynasty, and carrying on the tradition, as late as 1990 Roberts and Doré were appointed as silversmiths to The Royal Guard of Oman after an extensive contract to supply silverware to the officers’ mess.

Roberts and Doré continued through three generations of the Roberts family. Trevor, Tom’s son joined in 1926 and Henry and Kim, Trevor’s sons joined in 1958 and 1968 respectively. During the two World Wars, the company’s expertise was harnessed in supplying cutlery and food containers to the armed forces.
a stylish century of craftsmanship

By 2008 - exactly 100 years after the birth of Roberts and Doré, the public’s demand for quality goods made in the traditional old-fashioned way, was on the increase. In response to this and to celebrate R&D’s centenary, the Roberts family designed a special collection of fine sterling silver, silverplate and rich traditional leather accessories. A lot of the designs were taken from their extensive back-catalogue of products, and given a modern twist on original retro designs.

Each item is a commitment to a century of craftsmanship, and comes presented in elegant gift boxes. The passion Tom, Trevor and now Kim Roberts have for building this fine business still forms the driving force today. No compromise on quality, service or value for money.

In 2009 Roberts & Doré took over Picnic at Ascot Ltd and added their fine Picnic and Barbecue Collections to their range thus enabling the tradition of fine dining to be extended outside in the summer months.

“We are justly proud of our history and will continue the traditions established by my Father and Grandfather” – Kim Roberts
